

Reel Thinking presents...

Guess Who's Coming to Dinner

Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn (who won the Academy Award for Best Actress for her performance) are unforgettable as perplexed parents in this landmark 1967 movie about mixed marriage. Joanna (Katharine Houghton), the beautiful daughter of crusading publisher Matthew Drayton (Tracy) and his patrician wife Christina (Hepburn), returns home with her new fiancé John Prentice (Sidney Poitier), a distinguished black doctor. Christina accepts her daughter's decision to marry John, but Matthew is shocked by this interracial union; the doctor's parents are equally dismayed. Both families must sit down face to face and examine each other's level of intolerance. In Guess Who's Coming to Dinner, director Stanley Kramer has created a masterful study of society's prejudices.

This year's Reel Thinking series will focus on American and International films with themes of racism, institutional racism, and social trauma. Discussion will focus on psychosocial, cultural, and psychoanalytic perspectives that are helpful in clinical settings, including psychotherapy, and in overcoming conscious and unconscious biases.

Dr. Terri Randall is an Assistant Professor of Clinical Psychiatry at the Perelman School of Medicine University of Pennsylvania and an Attending Physician at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia in the Department of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences. She completed her training in adult psychiatry at Duke University Medical Center, in child and adolescent psychiatry at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, and in addiction psychiatry at the Medical University of South Carolina. Since returning to the CHOP as an attending physician, she has been involved in clinical care, research, and resident and fellow training. As the medical director of the substance use disorder clinic, Dr. Randall supervises trainees and provides comprehensive assessments of adolescents and families with concerns about substance use disorders and comorbid behavioral concerns. She is also engaged in Wellness and Diversity and Inclusion initiatives in the department and enterprise.
