

Child Analysis Revisited: The Experience as It Is Recalled and Represented in Adult Analysis

Presenter: James Herzog, MD
Discussant: Corinne Masur, PsyD

This presentation is directed toward all mental health clinicians: psychoanalysts, psychologists, social workers, masters-level counselors, graduated students in social work and psychology, as well as psychiatry residents and fellows in both adult and child treatment.

Dr. Herzog will be presenting an adult who has returned to treatment after an analysis as a child. This presentation will demonstrate how the childhood treatment presents itself in the adult. What was beneficial and what was perhaps misunderstood.

The participants will learn adult analytic technique and theory, as well as child analytic technique and theory, and how it applies to clinical work. They also will begin to understand how an earlier analytic treatment informs a later adult treatment.

Dr. Herzog will present his clinical material and Dr. Masur will discuss certain aspects of the clinical material. Participants will be able to ask questions of both Dr. Herzog and Dr. Masur.

Dr. Herzog is a Training and Supervising analyst at the Boston Psychoanalytic Society and Institute. He is a renowned teacher both nationally and internationally. He has been presented with numerous awards for his clinical work. Dr. Herzog is the author of many articles and books. Dr. Herzog has a private practice where he sees children, adolescents, and adults in psychoanalysis and psychotherapy.
