

ANALYTIC PRINCIPLES FOR THE REAL WORLD

"INVISIBLE" RESISTANCE: POLITE COMPLIANCE AS RESISTANCE

PRESENTER: YINGYING WANG

DISCUSSANT: ELIO FRATTAROLI, MD

This latest installment of our case conference series highlights the case of a patient where resistance takes the form of “polite compliance”; how that affects the treatment, and the difficult countertransference feelings it stirs up in the therapist. This case will be presented by PCOP psychotherapy student Yingying Wang, to discussant Elio Frattaroli, MD, psychoanalyst and PCOP faculty member.

Discussion will focus on clinical interventions and case formulation, demonstrating the relevance of analytic principles to work with a variety of patients, as well as concrete examples of “what to say, when” in psychotherapy that attendees can apply to their own clinical work. Attendees will have the opportunity to discuss the material together in “break out” chat groups, and a moderator will guide the following question and answer period where you can pose questions to Yingying and Elio regarding the case.

Yingying Wang is in the first year of the FOPT program at PCOP, and in her fourth year of CAPA program. She works with individuals experiencing anxiety, depression, and challenges related to a history of trauma. Her work currently focuses on adult psychotherapy but she has plans to expand her work more into work with children and adolescents. Yingying has a private practice in Hangzhou, China.

Elio Frattaroli, MD, is currently the director of PCOP’s adult psychoanalytic training program and he works in full time private practice. He has been teaching in PCOP’s psychoanalytic and psychoanalytic psychotherapy programs for as long as PCOP has existed. He trained with Bruno Bettelheim in Chicago before going to Medical School and did his psychiatric residency and was an attending physician at the late great Institute of Pennsylvania Hospital where he did a lot of long-term inpatient treatment of psychotic and other severely disturbed patients. Elio has published and lectured widely on a range of psychoanalytic topics (including Shakespeare). His book, Healing the Soul in the Age of the Brain: Becoming Conscious in an Unconscious World was published on September 10, 2001.
